1. What Is Sexy Food

Sexy Food specifically caters for couples wishing to have a romantic experience. Sexy Food is a one stop shop online where customers can browse suppliers and contact them direct. Between 1 October 2006 – 1 April 2007 the Sexy Food web site will be featuring the following categories.

1. Restaurants
2. Getaways [Accommodation]
3. Limousines
4. Florists
5. Gifts
6. Organics

After 1 April 2007 Sexy Food will be expanding their services and increasing their setup fee and monthly charges.

2. Sexy Food Web Site

The Sexy Food Branding includes the following web addresses:

www.sexyfood.com.au www.sexygetaways.com.au
www.sexyonline.com.au

Clients log on to any of the above web addresses where your service will be featured. All services are logged in by State then area.

If a customer is interested in your service, they are invited to click further to obtain a unique booking number. The customer must quote this number [eg. Sexy621] when making a booking with you. This is so you as a supplier know that they must be offered the extra service and that your online service is working for you.

3. Sexy Food Supplier

As a Sexy Food Restaurant you must:

- Supply your Sexy Food customers with a romantic experience
- Supply your Sexy Food customers with an exclusive sexy food menu
- Be a licensed venue or offer free corkage.
- Offer extra service and Complimentary Products

4. Sexy Food Menu

You must have a specific menu for Sexy Food clients of anywhere between six and twelve different dishes. This Sexy Food menu can vary monthly; this is something you have total control over. Once a menu has been submitted to Sexy Food, it will be featured on the web site and is included in your monthly fee.

5. Sexy Food Gift

You must give your customer a sexy food gift as part of their dining experience. This could be a bottle of champagne, complimentary dessert or the like. The Sexy Food gift must be related to Sexy Food so that this gift can be featured on the web site and updated this is included in your monthly fee.

6. Pricing For Meals

The price of meals on the Sexy Food menu is up to the individual restaurant but should be competitive and value for money to attract clients.

7. The Sexy Food Kitchen

Sexy Food offers a free service to its customers featuring tips, suggestions and recipes. As a Sexy Food member, you are welcome to offer your sexy food tip, suggestion or recipe free of charge with an acknowledgment to you.
